

No matter who you are, no matter where you are on your spiritual journey, you are welcome here.

What is your question?

What is the quest you are on?

What is your “Quest-I-On”?

We need a core narrative that offers us security in an insecure world.

Ordinary Life

The narrative our culture follows -

- more will make us happy
- youth is more valuable than age
- that we deserve the best of everything
- that technology will make everything better

“Seek the truth, come whence it may, lead where it will, cost what it will.”

We need a different narrative. One that will offer security in an insecure world. One that can lead to healing of our many wounds.

Each must go alone into the forest and enter at the place of his own choosing. Individuation is not a group activity.

Ordinary Life

A hero is a chooser.

A hero chooses the questions of her or his life and therefore the quest that person chooses to live.

The questions Jesus asked are designed to reposition people. To lift them up from where they think they stand and put them down some place else.

The questions he asked, the stories he told, the deeds he did were designed to make people aware of their unconscious biases, to break them out of their dualistic mindset, to challenge their image of God or of the world and to present them, us, with new and creative possibilities.

God is crying out to us through the suffering of the earth and its inhabitants: “Do you love me?”

We have to listen deeply to the answers and act accordingly.

Whatever is at the center of your life will be the source of your security, your guidance, your wisdom and your power.

“What good is it to me if Mary gave birth to the son of God fourteen hundred years ago if I do not give birth to the child of God in my time and in my culture? We are all meant to be mothers of God. For God is always needing to be born.”

“What do we live for if not to make life
less difficult
for each other?”
