Ordinary Life

Religion has become a love affair with the past and the “status quo” and embraces a deep fear of the future.

We Journey in the Belly of a Paradox

Ordinary Life

Whoever does not
Refuse father and mother
Cannot become my student.

Whoever does not reject
Brother and sister,
Accepting the cross as I do,
Is not ready for me.

LEAVING HOME

Ordinary Life

What and where is home?

Ordinary Life

Ordinary Life

We don't add the journey to our list.

The journey is how we do our list.

Whoever does not
Refuse father and mother
Cannot become my student.

Whoever does not reject
Brother and sister,
Accepting the cross as I do,
Is not ready for me.

Translation and Commentary by DANIEL C. MATT

Be here!
 See the Sacred in Everything.
 Have faith that there is something more.
 Be open to the Mystical.

Ordinary Life

We are on a journey to where we truly already are.

Ordinary Life

Waking up this morning, I smile.

Twenty-four brand new hours are before me.

I vow to live each moment fully

And to look at all beings

With eyes of compassion

We travel as if we did not know where we are going.

We live as if we have already arrived.

We live in the belly of a paradox.

We have the capacity and the courage for this journey.
